Engaging Communities in Developing and Implementing Health Communication Interventions

Thursday, February 22, 2018
12:30 - 1:30 PM

Miller Learning Center
Room 348

This presentation focuses on two health communication interventions developed in conjunction with community groups, addressing adolescent risk taking and patient disclosure.

DR. KATHRYN GREENE is a Professor of Communication at Rutgers University. Her research focuses on health decision-making and the central role of communication in both preventing disease and injury in adolescents as well as in maintaining health and wellness in close relationships.

Dr. Greene is coauthor of two books and has published more than 90 peer-reviewed journal articles. Her projects have been funded by the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) and the National Cancer Institute (NCI). She has received multiple Top Paper/Panel Awards at both National and International Communication Associations.
